

NEW HANDS AT THE HELM.

As Arbitration Place celebrates its 10th anniversary, and as we transition to a business model that combines traditional practices with the exciting new techniques we developed during the pandemic, I know that continued growth and success depend on the ongoing commitment, professionalism, and entrepreneurial spirit of our people. So, it's quite fitting that we now introduce our new CEO, Jeffrey Mandell, to head-up our incredible team.

I am remaining actively involved as Founder and Chair, focusing on overall innovation and strategic direction. Together, we will be working to enhance and expand Arbitration Place both domestically and internationally.

Jeffrey is a lawyer, investment banker, and hospitality entrepreneur. He graduated from the joint J.D./MBA program from the Schulich School of Business/Osgoode Hall Law School in 1999, practised corporate finance and securities law at Osler, and was Managing Director of corporate finance/mergers and acquisitions at a leading mid-market accounting firm. Earlier, he was the creator, visionary and CEO behind Lobby, the iconic Yorkville supper club in Toronto.

This unique fusion of experience is perfectly suited to Arbitration Place and its future direction as an avant-garde and technologically advanced market leader. Jeffrey's diversified background makes him the ideal executive to take us forward. As CEO, he will continue to build a world-class roster of arbitrators and mediators, guide international expansion and enhance and develop service lines that add tangible value to parties, counsel, arbitrators and mediators. Jeffrey will undertake to stay at the forefront of operating inspirationally designed, state-of-the-art, high-tech virtual, hybrid and in-person hearing facilities that provide an exceptional hospitality experience in the dispute resolution environment.

Please join me in welcoming Jeffrey to Arbitration Place.
